Trading Men For Concessions

As a reward for its surrender to the new Hitler demands, Vichy is promised the return of 100,000 French prisoners of war. Without releasing what liberation may mean to three men, even though liberation only means living in the larger internment camp that is now France, the reward is not in keeping with the circumstances.

There were at last reports about 2,000,000 French prisoners of war in Germany. For the release of this suffering fraction of the number the Nazis have obtained freedom from the terms of the armistice, and gained concessions which seem to be as broad as French territory lying with reach to their forces. They still hold 1,500,000 Frenchmen as captives whom they can barter for any number of concessions they may want on the part of Vichy.

Darlan and company have traded so much for so few is the index to their release by which it can be seen that the price they will be made to pay for the release of further batches from the German camps. What price French Equatorial Africa? What price French Indochina? How many would be released in return for control of the Vichy warships? Or how many will get Vichy French colonies, the assistance to the Reich into open war against its former allies?

The French people are being put under pressure to submit to the demands of the Nazis and outages their Nazi masters may impose upon them, by the knowledge that 2,000,000 Frenchmen are held at the mercy of the Nazis in German camps. It is the measure of how much Darlan et al. care for the French prisoners of war, the people of France, or the rights, honor and dignity of the country.

The Degree Isn't Everything

More students graduated from Alberta's University this year than in any preceding year. The margin over last year's number was not large, that also having set a record. But the number of graduates was not large, that also having set a record. But the number of graduates was not large, that also having set a record.

There are many young men and women who now go out into the world to play their parts in professional, business and other phases of life, engravations and good wishes are due. Congratulations on and commendations are due. They may find happiness and success in the things for which they have thus fitted themselves.

If a pull could be taken of those who have been long immersed in the hurly burly into which these young folks are now to plunge, it can be said with confidence they would hope most of all that the graduates will be able to keep themselves out of the hurly burly of student days and not be led into the folly of supposing that success consists wholly in making of a living for one's self. It is still true that it is still true that man cannot live by bread alone—remain a man.

The greatest treasure a University is to carry away from a University is not a document which tells the world he or she has graduated a certain degree. It is the right to rank among educated people. The real prize is a love of learning for learning's sake, and for the sake of using learning for the good of the world. It is still true that it is still true that man cannot live by bread alone—remain a man.

The Battle Of Crete

The island of Crete lies like a barrier across the sea route from Axis-held Greece to Egypt and Syria. It is sixty miles long, the mainland, and three times as far from Egypt. The area is around 3,200 square miles, upwards of fifty per cent being high. The interior is mountainous. There are few good harbors, but Suda Bay has been made a base for units of the British and Greek fleets.

The island is now the seat of the Greek Government. It was occupied by German forces at the plans to support Greece against the Nazi attack. How well it has been fortified, and how strongly it is held has not of course been officially stated. But Mr. Churchill in a recent address named Crete as one of the points in the Middle East which will be held at all costs. From which it is to be inferred defense preparations have been as complete as time and circumstances permitted and the island gararrisoned as strongly as thought necessary.

The position of Crete, even without the presence of the Greek Government there, would make a target for Nazi attack as part of the developing offensive against Iraq and Iraq. It is an outpost guarding the approaches to the Suez Canal, and a springboard from which R.A.F. planes have been bombing German positions in Greece. Its capture would be of corresponding advantage to the enemy, who would have a large scale attempt on either the coveted oil fields or the canal without first getting possession of Crete.

The attack which began yesterday is likely to be pressed, and Crete may be the centre of all sea and air operations. Those which have raged over and around the much smaller island of Malta farther west, with hard land fighting to boot. The New Zealand public advice board approved a $350,000 building program.

New Zealanders. This typical Nazi trick is intended of course to make identification difficult and thus give the invaders a better chance to kill defenders and capture prisoners.

The rule has another significance. A soldier dressed in uniform but with his own as no longer a soldier. He is an armed bandit, entitled to no consideration, and deserving only to be shot on sight. This the German military authorities know. They see in these men to conquer or die. That is the measure of the value they set upon the capture of Crete, and a hint as to their willingness to sacrifice men in the attempt.

Herr Hitler has taken over the job of grand panjandrum of the Nazi party, vacated by Hess. Herr Goebbels told us the other day the job was of an entirely different importance. He had better hope too before Adolf reverts that unfortunate remark.

Newspapers, and men in many other walks of life, all over Canada will regret to learn of the death of Mr. J. H. Woods of the Calgary Herald. Coming to Calgary in 1901 from Toronto, he has been associated with the Herald ever since. He was one of the founders of the Canadian Press news gathering agency, and has been associated with the activities of Mr. Woods were many, touching civic, provincial and national life, and having to do with interests ranging all the way from the military to the political and the Boy Scout movement.

From The News

By Harold L. Weir

Prime Minister Churchill told the British House of Commons yesterday that he was not in a position to make any statement on the Heise case and that he did not know when it would be tried.

It should be noted that Mr. Churchill's was not one of the voices that joined in the clamor of speculation or exultation over the surprise arrival of the Nazi chieftain in Sicily.

Mr. Churchill's silence was and is significant of his doubts, as is also his reported refusal to meet the fugitive former head of the Nazi party.

It is natural but unfortunate that the silence of Mr. Churchill is significant of his doubts, as is also his reported refusal to meet the fugitive former head of the Nazi party.

It is so easy to be put off our necessity by the thought of the future that we might recover that measured attitude of effort when the inevitable reaction follows.

Mr. Churchill quite evidently mistrusts the value of any decision to meet the man who he is inclined to take—if, indeed, he has, shown any such inclination at all.

And certainly, it is difficult to see how such a meeting could be a valuable one now, so valuable they might be.

It is not at all certain that the former Nazi leader is clearly aware of Hitler's latest plans. The German reports would have us believe, Hitler cannot have trusted him completely with campaign details.

He would not know the minute details of Hitler's plans and is willing to divulge them, his report would be of doubtful value because he would not know the minute details of Hitler's plans and is willing to divulge them.

The Country in Peril
For the country in peril, the phase of the war has begun with Marshal Pétain's announcement that France and the French colonies are to be put, regardless of the French people may think, at the disposal of Hitler.

It is a strange position of the greatest importance in the history of the world. The French people, in the Mediterranean, in the Red Sea, in the Indian ocean, and in the Pacific, have a year ago seen the French empire, with its strategic position, was a strange and active role in the defense and the security of all the oceans and of the two Americas which lie in the midst of oceans.

Until Marshal Pétain on Friday accepted the German-Hitler suggestion the French empire was for the most part at least passive and neutral in the formation of the world.

Now it is to be incorporated into the world. The French empire, beginning, it would appear, with the delivery of Syria as a base for the invasion of the Middle East. What is to be done in the Pacific? The French empire is now to be joined with Japan for the domination of the Pacific—Singapore, Malaya, the Philippines. What is to be done in the Atlantic? In the Western Hemisphere, what is to be done in the "Temps," the official organ of the French empire, the "geographical position" of the French empire.

Why People Cuss
A couple of cuss writers at the holy see of Rome, the Vatican, are now on a moving cartoon, "Mr. Big Goes to Town." They have had the difficult job of thinking up some new cuss words.

Coming with the stereotyped cuss words is easy enough for most of us. The "G-word" is the most common. The reason we use "Damn" instead of "Hell" is that "Hell" is too much like a hammer—er, after all, we use it so often.

What do we mean? Quasi for the most part, it is the use of the word "Damn" instead of "Hell" is that "Hell" is too much like a hammer—er, after all, we use it so often.

Burma Road To China Has Made Boom Towns Of Sleepy Villages

Lashio, Hill Town in Northern Burma Where Road Begins, Has Undergone Surprising Transformation

Following is the second of a series of free articles by A. T. Steele in which he describes the surprising boom towns that have sprung up along the Burma Road.—EDITOR.

By A. T. STEELE
KUNMING, Southwest China—(Via Clipper)—(CDN)—The flood of trucks, men and materials coursing over the Burma Road to China has made boom towns of many sleepy villages along its route. In none of them has the transformation been more surprising or complete than in Lashio, the hill town in northern Burma where the highway begins.

In the old days, Lashio was a village of 4,000 inhabitants, was on the map only as the administrative centre of the northern Shan states and as the inland terminus of a 60-mile railway from the seaport of Rangoon. In two years, Lashio has more than tripled in size and had acquired all the sprawling, slapdash characteristics of a mushroom mining town.

Ships carrying American goods for the China supply line are unloaded at Rangoon, where they are loaded—some or later—in trains for Lashio. There the stuff is stored in a waiting for western military supplies.

EXCLUSIVE

For the overworked trucks can get around in loading it for the long haul to China.

PLACE ALTERED
Arriving in Lashio by train, after a 26-hour journey, I found the town through rice fields and tea forests from Rangoon. I found the place altered in many ways. In the years ago that I felt a complete stranger. The atmosphere was spanning new, jerry-built houses of bamboo, wood, or gray brick, reared through the hills in all directions. Many of the model houses have been built off the Burma Road. The Lashio boom. There is the place, for instance, where you will find the town needed was a durable building material. He rented a lot on the outskirts of town, hired a few coolies and began manufacturing concrete blocks. The town's old buildings are made of them, and the road father is reputed to be a wealthy man.

Looking for a place to spend the night, I passed up such boom town hostilities as the "Yee Yee Hotel" in favor of the modest inn operated by the American manager of the Chinese National Aviation Corporation. Excusing the high rates, one of the staff explained that "many of our vegetables come all the way from Hong Kong by air." Hong Kong, incidentally, is nearly 2,000 miles away, and every bunch of orders brought to Lashio in the regular passenger planes has to cross the whole expanse of China.

Lashio, as starting point of the Burma Road, grows in large of the trucking business. Big dumps of oil and munitions line the roads outside the town. There too are the truck depots and repair stations, serviced by companies which supply fleets of trucks over the highway. Biggest of all is the Southwest Transportation Company, official Chinese concern, which carries new trucks and spare parts. Numerous smaller firms operate convoys of from 10 to 300 trucks. The Burma Road has made a mile-long line of boom towns out of sleepy villages, whose trucking business is a racket, and to be seen all along the road. The trucks invariably travel in convoys, so that when one breaks down or crashes the others

On Manoeuvres GASOLINE TAX IS SUBJECTED TO CRITICISM

Parliament Spends Day Discussing New Wartime Taxation Imposts

Ottawa, May 21.—(CP)—Sharp criticism of the application of the three-cent gasoline tax to the use of fuel by farmers and fishermen in their work, Tuesday night, was the subject of a debate in the House of Commons. The Finance Minister, Mr. Bennett, defended the tax, saying it was necessary to raise revenue for the war effort.

After "long, weary" hours of debate, however, the government had decided it could not announce: re-bates of taxes without evidence which would bring the federal tax-collecting machinery into disrepute.

Conservative leader Mr. Bennett, however, said that the government had decided it could not announce: re-bates of taxes without evidence which would bring the federal tax-collecting machinery into disrepute.

RED DEER GETS FIRST MEN AT TRAINING CAMP

For the first time in the history of the Red Deer brigade, the first men at the training camp were from the province of Alberta.

Earlier the minister announced that the first men at the training camp were from the province of Alberta.

Another group came in by train from the south during the day. More men will be coming in the rest of the week from the area between the coast and the great lakes.

Mr. Col. J. J. Burton-Willson is the commanding officer. He came to Red Deer from Camp Borden, where he had been stationed for some time. Mr. Burton-Willson is a Vancouver man and has been in the army since 1910.

The present RCAC training centre follows the militia training centre which was established here in 1910. It was then a small camp, but it has since grown into a large training centre.

French Equatorial Africa Production Will Go To Britain

New York, May 21.—(AP)—British Broadcasting Corporation, in a French language broadcast, yesterday announced that the British government has concluded an agreement with the French Equatorial Africa for the production of defense control of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, providing for the purchase of the bulk of the production of French Equatorial Africa.

Third place in the Masters Invitational was won by Harry Fishbein, one of the country's outstanding players. Fishbein was champion in 1938 and 1939 and a one of the holders of the World's Championship title. He will be defended at Astor Park this coming August.

On winning the first bid, Fishbein led a line of defense and played the queen from dummy. East let it build in the hope that declarer would make the mistake of leading a second diamond.

With the game safe, declarer cashed the jack of clubs and led low to the ace. The fall of the ten, indicating that East held a king, was now won of clubs, gave Fishbein a chance to try a throw-in for extra tricks.

South led a low heart and the ten was won by the queen. Now East was indeed stuck for ace. He tried leading the ace of diamonds and then forcing out the king. As he set up a diamond trick for himself, he was in a bad position.

But this dummy caught the spade king, South discarded a heart, and when the rest of the clubs were out East was squeezed. In the end he had to lead his king of hearts in let go his last diamond. Fishbein was bound to win an 11th trick with the diamond nine or heart jack.

AIR MAIL IN DOMINION IS ON INCREASE

Volume Carried Grows At Rate Of Four Per Cent Monthly, Statist

Ottawa, May 21.—(AP)—Air mail figures are running ahead of post office expectations in 1941. When the house took the resolution on the special war revenue act after the dinner recess, T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Bridgview) expressed strong opposition to the increase from six to 10 per cent of volume. He said the postal rates were already exorbitant, and to raise the tax was going "beyond the limit."

House-To-House Census Canvass Starts June 1

Ottawa, May 21.—(AP)—Actual house-to-house and farm-to-farm canvass by census enumerators will start June 1, 1941, census documents tabled in the House of Commons Monday for A. M. Nicholson (C.C.F. Mackenzie) showed.

The enumerators will assemble information as of June 1, the day the census was due to start. The actual canvass was delayed so there would be no conflict with the work of the census takers in 1940.

Elevator Foreman Killed In Fall At Medicine Hat

Medicine Hat, May 21.—(AP)—Fred Hall, 42-year-old elevator foreman at the Maple Leaf Milling Company here, was killed Tuesday when he fell 13 feet to a concrete floor from a steel post while working on a grain elevator. An inquest will be held today. He is survived by his widow and three sons.

Wheat Seeding

Regina, May 21.—(AP)—Wheat seeding is 80 per cent completed and about 40 per cent of the course grain acreage has been seeded. It is stated in reports received by the statistics branch of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture.

Remark Ends Flurry

Ottawa, May 21.—(CP)—A remark by George Crutchfield, La. Fraser Valley, which got a laugh from the House of Commons Tuesday night ended a flurry in which half a dozen members were competing for the floor during debate on budget tax changes. "Has any one suggestion ever been given to a tax in arrears?" asked Mr. Crutchfield.

Steel Rolling Plant For B. C. IS ANNOUNCED

Ottawa, May 21.—(CP)—Mentioned Minister Howe announced Tuesday that a steel rolling mill will be operated in Vancouver within a few months to meet the increased demand for steel generally in British Columbia and especially for the expanded Canadian ship-building program in which the Pacific coast largely shares.

Mr. Howe's announcement said the project will be financed by Dominion Bridge Company, which already owns and operates large steel fabricating facilities in the Vancouver area. The company plans to move its furnaces and rolling mills from its Calgary plant which has not been in operation for some time.

The equipment is expected to be moved and in operation in Vancouver in about three months.

"This steel will be produced in Vancouver more rapidly than by any other means and without substantial increase in the foreign equipment required in purchase equipment abroad," the announcement added.

The Vancouver mill will manufacture only the scrap available in British Columbia and western Alberta, where it can be collected economically and where dealers have been facing the problem of disposing of scrap which has been accumulating since the beginning of the war.

Tuning Up For The Defence Of Democracy—Dominion Of Canada Helps Prepare For Offensive

Black night, roaring engines and the gleam of new metal in the glare of floodlights—a striking study of the round-the-clock production by the aviation industry for the U.S. army and Great Britain. This is a four-engine Boeing Flying Fortress, one of the ships now being flown across the Atlantic for delivery to the Royal Air Force. Twelve hundred horsepower Wright Cyclones, just out of their shipping crates, are being "run in" on the night shift at the Boeing factory at Seattle, preparatory to flight-testing of the bomber the next day.

Blitz or No, British Stylists Court Latin-American Market

DESIGNERS CREATE SPECIAL "HUSH-HUSH" COLLECTION

Against a background of almost daily devastation by German air attack, British designers and manufacturers have been shaping up a "Good Neighbor Policy" of their own. Despite the fact that British women are faced with ever more stringent clothes rationing, the dressmakers actually have created a collection aimed to capture a bit of the Latin-American style market. Known as the "hush-hush" collection, it was produced at the height of the autumn blitzkrieg. The first set of sample fabrics was bombed out, the second barely rescued from another bombing. The British Board of Trade undertook to transport it safely overseas, and show it to fashion-conscious senoras and señoritas south of the border. There are over eighty models. Fabrics are featured, as well as coloring and design. The outfit shown above was designed by Hartnell. It consists of white bodice and ground length, toast-colored linen skirt, each fastened with big copper buttons. Under the skirt are worn white linen shorts. Topping the outfit is a huge sunshade straw hat with straw chinband.

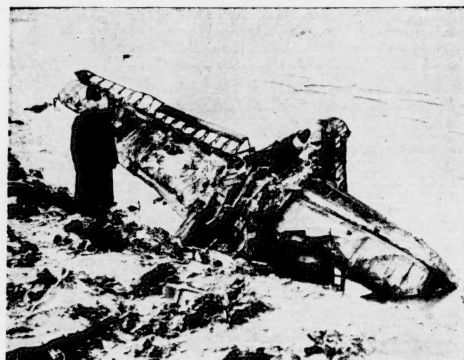

Tanks have been added to the long list of the tools of war now being manufactured in plants large and small across the entire Dominion. At left a set of acetylene torches quickly slice through armour plate in a Canadian factory. At right one of the war's latest types of metal monsters is shown as it waddies over rough ground.

Great Britain, realizing the value of parachute troops in modern warfare, is training these air soldiers at a secret Royal Air Force station "Somewhere in England," under army and air force co-operation. Equipment containers are attached to parachutes that were dropped with the men.

AGED PIONEER FEARED TO BE RIVER VICTIM!

Thomas Gray, 81, Believed Drowned Trying To Ford Stream

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, May 21.—First man to homestead across the North Saskatchewan river from Rocky Mountain House, and last of the pioneers who settled here 38 years ago, Thomas Gray, 81, is feared drowned in the river.

He has been missing for a week and it was believed he was at work on a farm until Tuesday. It is feared he tried to wade across the river and, being infirm, lost his footing and was washed down.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary two weeks ago in town, where they have been living.

WALKING TO HAMLET

East, Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Gray started to walk to Fernie Hamlet, seven miles west. One son, Thomas, lives half a mile east of Fernie and another son, Ira, lives four miles west.

Albert Parsons picked Gray up, but as he did not want to stop at the farm, Parsons dropped him off at Fernie post office, where he tried to walk, telling Mrs. Parsons, his wife, that he was going west but not to be seen.

As he often sent in one or other of his sons' farms, and there are no rural telephones, he was not missed for six days, when Tuesday morning, when Tom Gray came into town.

Tom thought his father was in town and Mrs. Gray had supposed he was at Tom's.

A search party left at once and late Tuesday found footprints and tracks of two men that Mr. Gray had made across the river, about three miles west of Fernie.

They followed the tracks to the river, but found them up the bank. Then half a mile west the tracks were back at the water's edge and from there no more tracks could be seen.

FRENCH BOO, HISS DARLAN AT BEAUVAIS

LONDON, May 21.—(CP)—A correspondent of the Free Press correspondent in London reported today that Admiral Jean Darlan, vice-president of the Vichy government, was booed and hissed at Beauvais, occupied France, when he stopped there in a lunch with Nazi officials on his way to meet Hitler 10 days ago.

The correspondent wrote that men and women along the route hissed and booed at the admiral, and that he was booed and hissed at Beauvais, occupied France, when he stopped there in a lunch with Nazi officials on his way to meet Hitler 10 days ago.
